About the Program

SolarBuddy's Hour of Power is a deeply rich and engaging program designed to educate and inspire organisations. This 1 hour program educates attendees on energy poverty and connects them to communities via a hands-on solar light build and letter writing activity.

A perfect fit for conferences and expos

How it works

Aligned with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, this highly engaging hands-on program includes a compelling presentation, assembly of solar lights by participants that connects them with a child living in energy poverty with a letter writing activity that is packaged with the light. At the end of the session, the solar lights are returned to SolarBuddy for quality assurance before embarking on the journey to a distribution country thanks to our NGO Partners.
